her beautiful eyes just glistening in the sun, the mix of blue and green. Every single day she would be there with her classic guitar. One day you had this great urge to talk to her to meet her. I sat at the bench she sat at everyday she wasn't there you told yourself that she was running late you waited for a whole hour and started to get up you saw someone move on the stairs. It was her. you ran after her, she was faster. she got away.....

Chapter 7 by Girlgurl2002

And there was no one. I was dreaming, thinking it was her. So with my foolish thoughts I went back to sit on the bench and there she was. flawless, in the sun playing that melody that always gets stuck in my head. I would drop down to my knees right there in front of her if I could and just stare at the honey brown in her eyes, the pink glisten of her lips and the way she just looks overwhelms me. But would a guy like me have a chance with her? As I started to walk away she came towards me. I panicked should I run or say something what would I do embarrass myself but I just said the first thing that came to my head was "Hi love the song you played", I said knowing I looked like a tomato." thanks", she said in a laugh

Chapter 8 by Rubina Soudagar

Most beautiful sound I ever heard. Her blue-green eyes even more beautiful from close.

"I see you sitting here everyday, do you wait for someone?"

"Uh, No. I- I just come here to here you play." Or should I say to see you.

"Oh, I have fan." That beautiful laugh again.

I smiled, "Yes, you can say that. I am a fan of your beauty, your voice ... How about discussing my admiration in detail over a cup of coffee?"

Those beautiful eyes looked down before meeting mine

"Yes, why not." She said.
